2. The subject matter of the proposed rule:

The Arizona Department of Environmental Quality is considering amending its new source review (NSR) rules in order to secure their approval as part of the state implementation plan (SIP) under the federal Clean Air Act.

The amendments would consist of extensive revisions to the state's major NSR program as well as new NSR requirements for minor sources and minor modifications designed to protect the national ambient air quality standards (NAAQS). As part of the minor NSR requirements, the amendments would add a new registration program for sources with emissions below the current permitting thresholds. In addition to these unpermitted sources, some sources that require a permit under current rules would be eligible for the less rigorous registration program.

There is currently a significant discrepancy, known as the "SIP gap," between the NSR rules as set forth in the Arizona Administrative Code and the rules that have been approved by the federal Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) into the SIP. Once approved, the amended rules would eliminate the SIP gap.

This rulemaking would also include conforming and technical changes to rules related to NSR, such as requirements for emissions testing and the general permit program.
